

ABSTRACT

A method for using the Internet includes the steps of entering character data indicating an operation desired by a user using a telephone and sending the character data to a provider's server; receiving the character data, using the provider's server,
5 carrying out the operation desired by the user based on the character data, generating display data showing the result of the operation, and sending the display data to a broadcasting station; receiving the display data, using the broadcasting station, and radio-transmitting the display data; and radio-receiving the display data from the 10 broadcasting station, using a television set, and showing the result of the operation on the screen of the television set, based on the display data.